DARI: Delivering personalized motion health at clinical scale

Dynamic human motion is the next vital sign—and DARI's Motion Health platform is the world's only technology allowing you to leverage patient motion data with unprecedented speed and convenience through the entire continuum of care—from wellness, to injury, recovery, and beyond.

DARI Motion Health's foundation is proprietary markerless motion capture technology and sophisticated biomechanical algorithms. Without attaching markers or calibrating force plates, DARI performs a comprehensive biomechanical analysis in as few as five minutes, and delivers objective and actionable data to clinicians and patients just seconds after the scan.

This data can then be leveraged to identify possible threats to bone and joint health, avoid potential injuries proactively, improve personalized training and rehabilitation services, and reduce overall healthcare costs with preventative care and wellness recommendations—empowering patients and athletes alike to predict and prevent injury, recover faster, and achieve better health outcomes.

With DARI's revolutionary biomechanical analysis technology, you can:

- › Differentiate yourself in your market
- › Drive patient volume, and use objective patient data to track and assess outcomes
- › Craft profitable new service lines and develop value-added partnerships with local businesses and organizations as the preferred provider for motion health in your region
- › Develop a risk-mitigation solution for value-based healthcare models—including CJR—through intelligent pre- and post-operative screening of surgical candidates
- › Provide a powerful solution for local employers to manage the musculoskeletal wellness of their workforce

Deliver a new kind of wellness to your community with objective, actionable, biomechanical data that predicts and prevents injury in everyone, from elite athletes to weekend warriors
